GLEN RIDGE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Their first Experience Fighting the Flames.

The newly organized Fire Department of Glen Ridge received their first summons to practical duty last Tuesday afternoon and did excellent service.

Some boys who were playing ball in the vicinity of Mr. Joseph M. Williams residence on Hawthorne Place at 5:30 P. M. discovered that the house was on fire, the flames already shooting out of the roof. They gave the alarm to the inmates who were oblivious of their danger. The Fire Department was at once summoned and in the meantime neighbors rushed in and assisted Mrs. Williams in the work of getting out the furniture and clothing.

The new bell that the house on Glen Ridge sounded the alarm at a quarter to six and four of the firemen were within a minute engaged in getting the apparatus out, consisting of the hose, pump and the new hook and ladder truck.

Before a round of the alarm was finished the firemen and truckmen were on their way to the fire. There were twelve men on duty when the building was reached, and as Mr. J. G. Zabarski, Chief of the Department, had not arrived from the city by this time, Foreman John A. Larkin took charge and ably directed the efforts to save the property until the arrival of the Chief.

The house was stretched and soon two streams of water were thrown upon the flames, which by this time enveloped the whole rear part of the roof. The fire was soon got under control. The men working inside were soaked with the water, and the need of rubber coats, etc., was greatly felt. Ladders were put up and from a south window in the second story Mrs. Williams was taken safely to the ground by firemen P. J. Larkin and Harry Mahoney. Mrs. Williams had remained inside looking after the removal of property until, the water being put on, the stairway was filled with smoke and she would not risk suffocation by going down that way.

All of the furniture and other movable property was saved unharmed except the carpets and a quantity of papers, books, etc., in the attic where the fire originated.

Comptroller Davis and Porter were at the fire and highly gratified with the work of the Department. It is said that not a window was broken and no damage was done to movables except necessarily from water. The entire property, worth about $4,000, was not damaged probably beyond $1,200. The owner has expressed himself as well pleased with the efficient work done by the firemen. Had not the new fire alarm system been completed, and the firemen though entirely inexperienced prompt and efficient in their service, the house would have been completely destroyed.

Not only are the people of Glen Ridge already proud of their firemen, but the ladies have already put in motion a subscription to provide rubber coats, hats and boots for the boys.

Thanks and success to the new department! May the boys conquer as quickly every fire they are called upon to subdue. They have begun well and should receive every encouragement.

First Church Guild.

The closing social of the First Church Guild was held on Tuesday evening. The Parish House was very prettily decorated with flowers and ferns and a good number of the guild and friends in the congregation were present.

The musical entertainment included piano solos by Mrs. Usher and Miss Florence Bell. Miss A. R. Pierson sang with a piano and violin accompaniment by the Misses Boyer.

Miss E. R. Whipple's presentation of Josiah Allen's play and readings from her trip abroad were extremely ludicrous and well applauded.

The evening closed with the reading of the constitution of the Guild by Dr. Wm. R. Broughton and some excellent remarks by the pastor upon the object of the society to promote Christian culture among its members.

HOBOKEN, JUNE 2, 1896.

Editor Bloomfield Record:

As June 11th approaches, the date which ends the period when teachers may avail themselves of the provisions of The Teachers' Retirement Fund Law, as a member of The State Teachers' Association (Committee on Pensions), with to make some report to the teachers of the State regarding the progress of the work, and to urge those who have not yet sent in their notifications to do so without delay, as, according to the law, notifications mailed after June 11th cannot be received.

Teachers who have not yet received notification how they may obtain them by writing to Miss Emma Cattell, Comptroller, Mr. Thomas M. White, Trenton, Mr. Harry Catlers, New Market, Mr. Alexander P. Kerr, Lambertville, Mr. Frank N. Thorn, Paterson, Miss Georgia B. Crater, Newark, Miss Elizabeth A. Allen, Hoboken, or State, Chas. M. Davis, Bayonne.

It is most gratifying to be able to report that in the larger cities and villages the great majority of teachers have already responded. In Hoboken 145 out of 155 teachers have joined; in West Hoboken, 41 out of 43; in the town of Union, 31 out of 40; in Jersey City, Newark, Bayonne, Paterson, Camden and the Oranges, teachers have responded to the plan with great promptness and all the teachers have joined. Twenty-one of the Normal School Faculty have sent in their notifications.

One of the most encouraging features in this entire campaign to make our provision for our worn-out or invalid teachers is the knowledge that the State Superintendent Barker is in hearty sympathy with the work and file of his profession. Shortly after taking office he wrote: "I am in hearty sympathy with The Teachers' Retirement Fund Law, and will do all in my power to make it a success," and in a later dated May 25th he says: "A large number of notices are received at the office each day, and from all parts of the State, so it seems that the teachers are very generally taking hold of the matter."

The untiring way in which the most influential principals in the State have swung into line, bringing their teachers with them, is inspiring. Many of these men did not at first regard the law with favor, but, as they have given it more thorough study, and have acquainted themselves with the operation of similar laws in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Illinois, Michigan, California, Canada and Europe, they have come to see that the general effect of making teachers independent of old age or broken health must be to lead a new dignity to the profession, and to attract to it a higher standard of men and women.

Great Universities in America and Europe are accumulating funds to provide for veteran professors. A year ago Harvard College had a fund of $300,000, the foundation of "The Retiring Allowance Fund," and McGill College, Montreal, has a similar foundation of more than $150,000. It has long been the custom in many colleges to pay pensions out of the general college funds. In this connection it should be remembered that college professors have at least comfortable salaries, while the average pay of teachers in the State of New Jersey is but $425 per annum—less than is paid to street cleaners in New York City. Teaching is a profession expensive to enter and exacting in its demands. Teachers must be educated gentlemen and ladies. They are expected to dress well, to maintain a respectable position in society, and fit for citizenship the youth of the State. Is it any wonder that from all over the country comes the cry that the best of our young men and young women no longer embrace the profession of teaching, or having entered it, leave it at the first opportunity. There is hardly a calling or profession to-day, sales woman, typewriter, designer, trained nurse, doctor, lawyer or journalist, that does not offer far greater financial inducements than do our schools. The State owes it to itself to correct this monstrous evil. Is it too much to say that its teachers are more important to its welfare than are its lawyers or its doctors?

In all European countries the State has made special effort to dignify and make attractive the professional and social standing of its teachers, and provides liberal old-age pensions, the object being to secure for this most important department of State service men and women of the highest character and attainments.

From what has been said of college pensions it is readily seen how much more necessary is some provision for the veteran incapacitated teachers of our common schools, with their average annual income of only $425. And yet, not a penny is asked from the State. The teachers, with an independence and self-reliance unexampled in any body of State servants, provide the fund themselves from their salaries. The State is asked only to dignify and safeguard the enterprise by permitting it to be organized under State law, and by becoming the guardian of the funds.

The teachers of the State are proud that in Senate and Assembly but two votes were recorded against The Teachers' Retirement Fund Bill.

To continue my report: Superintendent Snyder, of Jersey City, says: "I regard the law as a very good one in the main, and I have advised my teachers to avail themselves of its provisions." Superintendent Barringer, of Newark, says: "I approve heartily of this effort of the teachers towards self help and mutual aid, and I will cheerfully give it every assistance in my power." Superintendent Cuts, of Orange, Davis of Bayonne, Maxson of Plainfield, Hoffman of Atlantic County, Waters of West Hoboken, Run of Hoboken, Ortel of the Town of Union, and Horton of the North Bergen District, have cordially endorsed the law, and have actively co-operated in securing the adherence of their teachers. Miss Cattell, of Camden, reports similar interest in South Jersey.

The law provides that the fund may be augmented by bequests, donations, fairs, excursions, lecture courses, etc., etc., and already the spirit of enterprise is manifested. The teachers of Newark on Decoration Day got up an impromptu excursion for the benefit of the fund. Paterson is pushing forward arrangements for a large excursion this month for the benefit of the fund, and a Teachers' University Extension Lecture Course to cover the entire State is talked of for next winter. Hoboken, at its teachers' fair two years ago, realized more than $5,000 profit, and expects sometime in the future to do as well or better for the Annuity Fund. Other cities and towns of the State will not be found backward in these enterprises. The teachers of the State solicit bequests and donations for this fund.

Doubt has been expressed about the young teachers joining the organization. Experience has proved this doubt unfounded. Any young teacher may be worn-out veteran of a few years hence. The annual contribution from each teacher is so small that it will not be felt, viz., one per cent of the salary, or an average contribution of four dollars and twenty-five cents.

To conclude, The whole enterprise has united the teachers of the State as never before. It has made union and organization an fact. It has developed an esprit de corps. It has already perceptibly dignified the profession in the mind of teachers and public. Abraham Lincoln said to a young missionary in India: "Teaching is the noblest profession on earth." Let the public so appreciate this fact, and let teachers so fit and so comfort themselves, and deeper and stronger than ever will be laid the foundations of earth's greatest republic.

Very truly yours,
